Mr. Breitnback:

Stream flow starts on the watershed. The springs and the small streams they control. That's the braids locate. Encourage them to build on every stream and you will have a million mini reservoirs with little if any maintenance and no obstruction to spawning Salmon & steelhead. That's what was there when Mark Twain first came to the region and the reproduction was unbreakable. Just do away with cutting on the watershed. But above all - protect the braids. They are natural water masters.

Sincerely for Finnegan
